We find an asymptotic formula for the number of integers less than X which simultaneously omit a given digit in base 10 and have no prime factors larger than a parameter Y, which may be as small as a power of $\log X$.