

MA 23100, MA 23200 – Calculators Spring 2010

A scientific calculator with a one-line display is required. Graphing calculators and programmable calculators cannot be used. Calculators which are capable of numerical or symbolic differentiation or integration also cannot be used. Sharing calculators on a quiz or exam is not allowed.

“One-line display” means that what you type in appears on the same line as your answer. This means that if what you type into the calculator appears on one line and the answer appears on a different line, then that calculator cannot be used on quizzes or exams in this course.
