

Emergency measures for MA16200 after spring break 2020

Here are the emergency measures for MA16200 due to the coronavirus outbreak. They take effect March 23, 2020. The rest of the policy mentioned in the course webpage is still in effect.

Lecture: The lectures by Dr. Naughton and Prof. Yeung will be recorded by Boilercast at the same time as the scheduled classes and the videos will be made available through Blackboard to students later that same day.

Homework: The online assignments using MyLab Math (accessed through your MA 16200 Blackboard page) remain unchanged.

Exam: Exam 3 as well as Final Exam will be given online using MyLabMath. The detail of the exact format as well as the time will be announced later. The expected timing of Exam 3 and Final Exam should be the same as announced in the assignment sheet and on the course page already.

Recitation Class: The recitation class will be carried out as follows. Students can ask questions about specific homework problems or lecture material in an online Piazza forum. Students will be sent an invitation to join the forum via email. Students should read the forum rules at least once before posting a question (in the Q and A section) for the first time. The rules cover forum behavior and posting policy. The forum will be moderated by TA instructors—all recitation teaching hours in classrooms and common office hours (in the Math Resource Room) will be changed to forum moderation hours. The existing recitation teaching schedule and common office hour schedule will carry over to this new Piazza forum system. For example, if Mary Smith is a TA teaching Tuesday, Thursday at 9:30, 10:30, then Mary will instead moderate the Piazza forum at those times. If Mary also has common office hours at 3:30, 4:30 on Wednesday, then Mary will also moderate the forum at those times. Mary will answer questions (or resolve posts) about either lecture material or homework problems posted by any student in the course while moderating the forum. Students can use the forum at any time although TA moderators will be most active during the day.

Quizzes: Quizzes and quiz solutions will be posted as pdf files in the Piazza forum under the Resources heading. We will follow the existing schedule for quizzes. Students should do the quiz under normal quiz conditions (closed book, no devices) and then check their own answers against the solutions to get feedback. Students can post questions about the quiz in the forum. We will not collect your quiz. Students will receive full credit 20/20 for each of the remaining quizzes.

For Students who need special accommodations: We will make sure that you will get the extended time in online exams if needed as recommended by Disability Resource Center (DRC). Please still contact Mathematics Undergraduate Office as usual.
